advocates and grassroots human rights defenders. In 2022, we:
-----Accompanied affected communities in Guinea's BokÃ© and Siguiri regions in mediations with bauxite and gold mining companies to secure fair benefits and remediate harms.
-----Worked with communities devastated by Bea Mountain Mining Corporation's goldmining operations in Liberia's Grand Cape Mount County to seek redress from the company and its international financiers, including German, French and Dutch development banks.
-----Collaborated with local, regional and international partners on a campaign to stop the development of the East African Crude Oil Pipeline and associated oil extraction in Uganda's ecologically sensitive Albertine basin. 46 major banks and insurance companies have now committed not support this project due to its severe climate, environmental and human rights risks.
-----Worked with communities in Cambodia's Ratanakiri and Oddar Meanchey provinces to seek redress for land grabbing by multinational agribusiness companies through transnational civil litigation and alternative dispute resolution processes. In 2022, communities in Cambodia's Koh Kong province that we previously supported with research and legal advocacy reached a monetary settlement agreement with UK-based sugar retailer Tate & Lyle.
-----Worked with Indigenous communities in Indonesia's Central Java and North Sumatra provinces secure their right to Free, Prior and Informed Consent vis-a-vis planned limestone and zinc mining operations that threaten their livelihoods, health and safety and that could destroy critical water resources.
-----Worked with partners in the Philippines to hold the International Finance Corporation accountable for its role in financing the country's coal boom, which has had devastating impacts on people and the environment.
-----Launched FollowingTheMoney.org - a comprehensive and accessible online resource for corporate accountability researchers and advocates, including new open-source data tools for tracking shareholders and development finance.

environmental and social responsibilities and commitments. We conducted 4 workshops on the contents of the guide for 110 participants from all over the world. We also contributed content and served on the editorial board of the People's Map of Global China, a collaborative platform for tracking China's international activities, which launched in 2021. The project sources content from civil society organizations, researchers, journalists, and academics, producing profiles on China's bilateral relationships with various countries as well as profiles on specific development projects.
The program also worked with partners to advocate for improved standards in overseas Chinese investment projects, including supporting civil society groups to communicate concerns directly to Chinese policy makers and to document and publicize problematic projects. These collaborations have likely contributed to several important developments in 2022, including the adoption of new policies and guidelines by China's state planning agency, commerce and environment ministries, and banking regulator, calling for companies and banks to improve social and environmental performance in overseas projects.

investment funds marketed as "ethical" or "sustainable" to companies complicit in gross human rights abuses in Myanmar. We proposed seven policy solutions to combat greenwashing by the industry and restore the original values-based intent of socially responsible investing and we have kept the pressure on regulators through continued media attention to the problem,
Additionally, we continued to push the World Bank's private sector arms to adopt a strong policy framework to ensure communities harmed by their investments are able to secure effective remedy and redress. The IFC and MIGA finally responded to these demands by developing an "Approach to Remedial Action," with a public consultation on a draft of the approach set for early 2023.
And we continued to engage with key stakeholders in the aluminum industry to improve standards and strengthen accountability of companies involved in mining bauxite. Through ongoing advocacy, informed by our extensive experience working with communities
